Bicentennial fireplugs

Lompocans and visitors to Lompoc are intrigued over the bicentennial project of the Lompoc Junior Alpha Club — the transformation of 20 fire hydrants to characters ranging from Pocohontas, Daniel Boone and an astronaut. Norms

Harrison, Americanism chairman, states that the project is now nearly completed to transform hydrants in an area from Seventh Street to V Street and from Cypress Avenue to Central. Nine samples of the work are shown below.

Teamsters claim ballot victory

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Teamsters Union claimed victory in farm worker union representation elections at the nation's biggest egg producing ranch but Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers refused to concede.

Art Chavarria, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 186, said the vote at Egg City was 186 for his union and 114 for the UFW. One worker voted for no union at all.

The Teamster victory came the day after the union recorded an apparent but disputed win at the big E&J Gallo Winery near Modesto.

"The rooster ate the eagle in Egg City — I'm so happy I'm on cloud nine," Chavarria said. The eagle is the symbol for the UFW.

Deborah Peyton, a UFW attorney, confirmed the vote but said there were 203 additional ballots not opened because they were challenged by union, the company, the Teamsters Union or representatives of the new state farm labor relations board.

"All of the ballots and the challenged ballots will be sent to Sacramento and then the board will determine whether the challenged ballots should be counted," she said. "When the determination is made the vote will give us the victory."

Egg City near Moorpark in Ventura County produces three million eggs a day.

The workers there had been represented by the Teamsters Union. The UFW has been picketing the ranch where 14 South Vietnamese refugees have been employed.

Meanwhile, state officials said that since elections began in California two weeks ago under the new state law the UFW has been the winner in 18 and the Teamsters took 10. The outcome of the elections being conducted throughout the state will eventually determine bargaining jurisdiction for about 250,000 farm workers.

Both sides claimed victory in the elections at Gallo, target of a bitter nationwide boycott by UFW supporters. "We claim victory at Gallo," Chavez said Thursday from his headquarters in Delano. He said 123 challenged ballots in Wednesday's state-supervised election at the winery were cast by members of his union on strike.

On the basis of these ballots, which were not counted, Chavez claimed victory in the Gallo election, one of the most important so far in California's attempt to end years of violence and strife in the farm labor scene.

The tally in Wednesday's vote at the Gallo winery near Livingston was announced at 223 for the Teamsters, who are now recognized by Gallo, and 131 for the UFW. However, about 150 ballots were challenged, mostly by the employer, and these were impounded until it can be determined if they should be counted.

The Agricultural Labor Relations Board will conduct a "prehearing conference" Tuesday with the UFW and the Teamsters to decide how the challenged ballots in the Gallo election will be handled, a board spokesman said.

The board also will conduct hearings Wednesday and Thursday on the elections at farms belonging to the Western Growers Association. Ballots in the association's elections have been impounded because of a dispute between the unions.

The UFW wants representation of the association's ranches decided on a farm by farm basis while the Teamsters, who currently have a contract with the entire association, want the ballots counted in one block.

Administration demands return of probe documents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration today demanded that a House committee studying U.S. intelligence activities return immediately all secret documents supplied under subpoena by the White House.

The House Select Committee on Intelligence suspended its public hearings on the effectiveness of intelligence agencies after administration spokesmen charged the panel with declassifying some of the material without permission — especially documents dealing with the 1973 Mideast war.

Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., chairman of panel, told reporters after a bitter exchange with Justice Department and Central Intelligence Agency officials that the presidential order would end the panel's work.

Pike said, however, he would not return the material until he consulted with the full committee which will hold another session on Monday. He said he would also speak to House Speaker Carl Albert.

"If we comply with the request of the President it obviously stops the investigation if we are denied security material," Pike said.

Assistant Attorney General Rex E. Lee, appearing on behalf of the executive branch, said the committee had violated constitutional practice and previous congressional precedence by making public on Thursday intelligence predictions regarding the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

The portions released showed the State Department did not act on intelligence reports that said a war might be imminent.

"The constitutional question raised the committee's action is a most serious one," Lee said. "...the President's responsibilities for the national security and foreign relations of the United States leave him no alternative but to request the immediate return of all classified materials previously furnished to the committee and to direct all departments and agencies of the executive branch respectfully to decline to provide the select committee with classified materials ... until the committee satisfactorily alters its position."

Pike, interrupting Lee's statement at almost every line, interjected that this would mean the committee would have neither documents to work with nor witnesses to interrogate.

"I do not plan to turn over the material today and there is no question that the executive branch has technically stopped the legislative branch," Pike said. "I think we'll have to have some conferences."

Pike had issued subpoenas demanding all material relating to executive branch assessments before the outbreak of the 1973 Yom Kippur war, the Turkish invasion of Cyprus last year and the Communist Tet offensive.

"I think they (the executives) are very concerned that the product which is revealed is not worth the cost," Pike said. "They are greatly unwilling to release the language by which intelligence predicted major events. My feeling is that the language of the CIA, the Defense Intelligence Agency and other branches reveals better than any paraphrase how bad a job they do."

On Thursday, the committee heard a former State Department official claim he was prevented from warning Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger that war in the Middle East was imminent. The State Department denied the account.

Judge in strong threat to teacher union leader

United Press International

A New York state judge ordered striking New York City teachers to end their four days of picketing within three hours today, with possible jailing of union leaders and fines against the union as penalties for failure to comply.

The New York walkout, affecting 1.1 million students, was the largest of those across the nation affecting nearly 2 million in grade and high school enrollments.

State Supreme Court Judge Irving Saypol issued the order to teachers at 8 a.m. and recessed a hearing to 11 a.m., after the United Federation of Teachers and the Board of Education failed to reach a settlement in night-long talks.

The judge's order came after negotiators for both sides reported they were stalled by the failure of the city to release $43 million in frozen funds. "Nobody knows what will happen," a board spokesman said as the talks recessed indefinitely at 5:30 a.m. "A lot will depend on what happens in court."

Saypol met with attorneys for both sides in his chambers for 20 minutes and then said for the record he would grant a union request to suspend the court actions until Tuesday "on the condition they go forward immediately to stop the strike."

The judge had been expected to take action against teachers who had ordered Albert Shanker, the union leader, to explain why he had failed to remove picket lines from schools by 2:15 p.m. Thursday in defiance of court orders.

A spokesman for the Board of Education said the board negotiating team had made two early morning calls to deputy mayor James Cavanaugh inquiring as to whether $43 million in funds frozen because of the city's austerity program could be released, but "there's no movement on the $43 million."

The New York City teachers strike was among several across the nation today affecting nearly two million school children.

There was some good news for parents.

Teachers in Middletown and Woonsocket, R.I., returned to work under court injunctions to end their seven-day strikes.

And negotiators for striking teachers and the Manchester regional high school board in Haledon, N.J. reached tentative agreement to end their three-day strike early today.

Autry honored at joint meeting

By VAUGHN PROCTOR

Staff writer

Lompoc's former planning director, Al Autry, was honored last night during a joint dinner meeting of Lompoc City Council and Planning Commission.

Autry resigned recently to become planning director for the City of Santa Maria. Mayor Art Scott presented Autry with a ceramic plaque of the city's seal, and noted: "We'll replace you, but we'll never fill your shoes."

Words of praise were also directed at Steve La Rue, the Record's city editor, for the recent series he did on the electric power struggle and its effect on utility rates.

All five councilmen and all five commissioners were on hand.

The dinner meeting was designed to explore ideas and problems of the two bodies. A measure of the success of the effort was reflected in a declaration of Councilman E.C. Stevens who said it was "the best meeting" we've had.

During the nearly three hours of conversation, major attention was given to the city's quest for an "identity"; proposals for the Local Agency Formation Commission to establish Lompoc's sphere of influence; the question of growth or no growth; the future of Vandenberg Village and Mission Hills; the question of whether to blame high construction costs on the multitude of fees charged by the city, as asserted by Scott, or on the high interest rates charged by lending institutions as asserted by Autry.

Planning Commission chairman William Fick, who also serves on the Fourth Supervisorial District Advisory Committee for the General Plan, told his listeners that a slow growth pattern was emerging from planning studies in the north county.

A planning study which is being done by Livingston and Blaney for the county came under fire. Autry described some of the preliminary materials that have come forth from the consultant and declared: "If this is what we're getting for the $450,000, someone has been had."

In the end the question of what identity Lompoc has or should have attracted heavy attention, but there were other major questions, the one on Lompoc's rightful sphere of influence, for example and the differences of opinion on open space definitions.

Before the meeting ended, commissioner Robert Kranig told the councilmen that the planning commission was not getting enough guidance on crucial questions coming before the commission.

Church charges Lockheed with $100 million bribes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. paid $100 million in bribes in Saudi Arabia to influence sales of its fighter planes, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said today.

Church, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations, repeated the figure three times during a hearing to emphasize the amount, which equaled 11 percent of financially troubled Lockheed's overseas income in 1974.

"You pay out $100 million in bribes in one country alone," Church said during questioning of Daniel J. Houghton, board chairman of Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

"I don't think we consider the $100 million as bribes because we did receive benefits," Houghton replied.

Houghton said the money was not lost income to Lockheed because it was added to the top of prices charged to the oil-rich Saudis. He said Lockheed was satisfied with net income resulting from the Arabian sales.

Church said the Lockheed money was funneled through Mideast weapons agent Adnan Khashoggi.

Khashoggi, an American-educated Arabian who tried to buy a California bank last year, has also been linked with Northrop Corp.'s payments to Saudi generals.

Although Church said the $100 million was for bribes, Houghton said the bulk of the money went to Khashoggi "and his associates." But Houghton said he could not identify Khashoggi's associates, except for his brother.

The subcommittee today released an additional 23 pages of Lockheed internal documents before the hearing.

Commission gives approval to Exxon facilities

By DICK PRAUL
 Courthouse reporter

Exxon Co., U.S.A. has apparently hurdled the last major barrier on the road to setting up a giant onshore-offshore complex in the western Santa Barbara Channel aimed at recovering up to more than one billion barrels of crude oil and up to 550 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

But before its multi-billion plan is put into effect in Las Flores Canyon, west of Goleta, and in the Outer Continental Shelf area between El Capitan and Refugio State beach parks, there is the possibility it may have to consolidate its facilities with those of Atlantic-Richfield and Burmah Oil and Gas Co.

The South Central Regional (Conservation) Commission — after seven hours of testimony and discussion — voted 10-2 Thursday night in Santa Barbara to give conditional approval to facilities within the state jurisdiction including pipelines across state tidelands and an electrical substation. By a 7-5 vote the commission approved a permit for the controversial marine terminal at which tankers will make regular callings off the beach park areas.

The commission staff had recommended denial of the marine terminal facility and approval of the remainder of the project on condition that Exxon agree to consolidation if that is found feasible after environmental, economic and other studies are conducted on state and county levels.

The commission by a 9-3 vote had refused to accept the legal advice of Deputy Attorney General John Earl Frazier, who interpreted the State Conservation Act as requiring a two-thirds vote for approval on a project which limited access and public recreation use to state tidelands area.

Frazier contended the marine terminal operation of Exxon would cause such a limitation.

Exxon officials claimed the new marine terminal would be smaller in area than the present one to be replaced.

Carpenteria City Councilman Ernest Wulbrandt, who had voted for the two-thirds vote and voted with those who foresaw limitation on access and public recreation caused by the offshore project, provided the key vote for a permit favoring the marine terminal.

He later explained that he felt that Exxon "had to have some way of transporting processed oil" and felt a pipeline project as suggested by Supervisor James M. Slater and state legislators from this area was far enough advanced as a substitute.

Supervisor Robert E. Kallman moved for consideration of consolidation, although Exxon officials said they foresaw numerous vexing problems attendant in sharing their site with other companies.

County Supervisor Harrell Fletcher voted against the two-thirds majority needed for the marine terminal, for the project without conditions, and finally for the project to include possible consolidation. Voting against the terminal were Commissioners J. Tim Terry, Naomi Schwartz and Kallman.

The vote to approve a permit for the project without conditions deadlocked at 6-all.

The final approval, besides the condition of possible consolidation, had conditions requiring an appropriate state agency to conduct offshore monitoring the facilities, and for Exxon to have all tankers using the marine terminal to be equipped with the latest safety equipment.

Wulbrandt explained he voted for the necessary two-thirds vote for approval of the project on the grounds it would affect the recreational area embraced in the two state beach parks in the immediate area.

The commission at the outset of its meeting by a 8-4 vote elected Emmons Blake, former San Luis Obispo city councilman, as the new State Coastal Commission member from the South Central Region. Blake is the former owner of a printing and publishing company in San Luis Obispo. He will succeed Ira Laufer, of Ventura, on the state body, effective Oct. 3.

Lompoc man held for attempted murder

A Lompoc man was arrested in a Mission Hills bar last night and jailed on charges of attempted murder in the aftermath of a dispute that erupted during a game of pool.

William Bradford, 28, of 510 North C St., was booked in Lompoc Jail under $1,500 bail. Sheriff's deputies say they recovered a .22 caliber handgun.

The deputies arrived at the Hut bar, 1410 Burton Mesa Blvd., shortly after 7:30 p.m. in answer to a report of a "man pointing a gun at patrons." A few minutes later, the deputies arrested Bradford who led them to where he reportedly hid the weapon.

The deputies pieced together this story:

Bradford and a friend, Burl Adkins, 30, of 1575 Calle Lara, Mission Hills, were playing pool when they got into an argument over Adkins' ex-wife. The argument became heated. Bradford left the bar and returned minutes later to resume the argument. At one point, according to witnesses, Bradford pulled the handgun and pointed it at Adkins and pulled the trigger. However the weapon jammed and failed to fire. Bradford fled the scene. Adkins was not injured.

Chamber slates panel meeting

The Chamber Ambassadors, an active Committee in the Chamber, has had a successful year in bringing new members into the chamber. In addition, the ambassadors have been successful in bringing out constructive suggestions and criticisms from the membership that have benefited the chamber program.

Wednesday's panel program is another means towards getting active participation and ideas from the membership at large for continuing the progress of the Lompoc Valley Chamber of Commerce. Call the chamber office, 6-4567 for luncheon reservations.

Compromise oil move bogs down in Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It raced through the House, but a compromise extension of oil price controls bogged down in the Senate — and even a phone call to President Ford proved futile.

The Senate quit for the weekend at 8:40 p.m. Thursday, with no agreement on the compromise.

Minutes earlier, assistant Senate Republican leader Robert Griffin of Michigan announced he had reached Ford during a political swing through New Hampshire and told him of the Democrats' latest offer.

That was for oil price controls to be extended, but on condition the President not send Congress a decontrol plan until November.

Griffin said Ford agreed that if the Senate would pass the FBI in battle to keep evidence

DETROIT (UPI) — The FBI was fighting on two fronts today to keep what it believes is the most solid piece of evidence in its investigation into the disappearance of former Teamsters boss James Hoffa.

Federal investigators hoped to keep possession of a car they believe may have been used in the abduction of Hoffa.

The car is owned by Joseph Giacalone, 22, son of reputed Detroit Mafia boss Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, and he has gone to court seeking its return. A federal grand jury investigating the Hoffa case has subpoenaed Joseph Giacalone and was demanding he show up with the car.

Specially trained dogs picked up Hoffa's scent in the back seat and trunk of the auto. Other possible clues found in the car, investigators say, include fingerprints and a 12 gauge shotgun.

Authorities said evidence indicated the car was used in the abduction of Hoffa. Its surrender, they contended, would harm the FBI's investigation.

A federal judge, ruling on Giacalone's suit last week, ordered the FBI to return the vehicle to Giacalone.

The government is appealing. A decision was likely today in the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

Plot to kidnap wife of Younger thwarted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Law enforcement authorities have thwarted an apparent plot to kidnap the hospitalized wife of state Attorney General Evelle J. Younger and arrested a suspect, it was disclosed Thursday.

The Attorney General's office said the suspect, identified only as a new employee of the hospital, was an ex-convict and was booked as a parole violator and for making threatening calls to Younger.

A spokesman said the caller telephoned the Attorney General's San Francisco office three times on Wednesday, a day after the official's wife, Mildred, had undergone routine surgery at a San Francisco Bay Area hospital.

The first call was taken by a deputy who quoted the caller as saying, "The attorney general has been messing around with people and the law and had made a big mistake in House's extension Ford would not send a decontrol plan until Oct. 20.

If the Senate could buy that, Griffin said, "I think a great sigh of relief would go up all across the country."

No deal, the Democrats replied.

"The President ... has not moved an inch," Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, said.

Shortly afterward, the Senate quit for the weekend.

Its debate during the long day echoed the same suspicions and accusations that have characterized the energy debate of late 1973.

That embargo led to price controls on oil that held 60 per cent of domestic oil production under a $5.25-per-barrel ceiling at a time when uncontrolled oil was selling at from $10 to $13.

The law ended Aug. 31, and Ford vetoed Tuesday the six-month extension Congress had passed. His veto held up when a Senate move to override it got a 61-39 vote Wednesday, six shy of the two-thirds margin required.

Thursday, the House Commerce Committee approved a reinstatement of controls, through Oct. 31. The House took that up immediately and passed it without dissent. The extension was longer than Ford had said he would accept, but Republicans felt he could accept that.

Spinola warned by Portuguese rulers

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Portugal's military rulers warned former President Antonio de Spínola today he would be immediately arrested if he tried to return to the country.

Spinola's recent travels in Europe have led to speculation in Lisbon that the exiled general was gathering support for a coup attempt.

A communique by the policy-making Revolutionary Council said Spinola would be tried before a military tribunal "if he enters any territory under Portuguese administration."

Spinola fled Portugal after the military regime accused him of taking part in an alleged right-wing coup last March. He had lived in Brazil before traveling to Europe.

He was one of the leaders of the April, 1974, coup that ended a half-century of right-wing dictatorship in Portugal and became the first president of the new regime.

But the middle-of-the-road general resigned as president in September, 1974, as pro-Communist officers led the ruling Armed Forces Movement sharply to the left.

Premier-designate Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo reported to the council on his efforts to form a new cabinet. The communique said his report "was received with pleasure" but did not elaborate.

Azevedo has been trying unsuccessfully to put together a coalition cabinet of Socialists,

Former U.C. president dies

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Funeral services were planned today for Robert Gordon Sproul, who joined the University of California as a cashier and became president of the institution for 28 years.

He was 84.

During his tenure, the Berkeley campus was the site of the first splitting of the atom and became recognized as one of the nation's great scientific research centers, attracting leading professors and producing Nobel Prize winners.

Sproul died Wednesday night at his home in Berkeley after a long illness. An alumnus of the university's Berkeley school with a major in civil engineering, he was the first UC graduate to become head of the institution.

An outspoken man, Sproul clashed in the 1930s with students and others supporting neutrality for America in World War II, and was a staunch supporter of nations resisting the Axis powers.

Army won't jail Calley

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army is not as interested in William Calley as an individual as it is in the legal precedent his case established: that a soldier who kills unarmed civilians under the same conditions will face murder charges.

It is also interested in preserving the power of the court-martial system.

Calley, a former Army lieutenant convicted in the My Lai massacre in Vietnam, will be paroled when he gets back to Army custody.

Although an appeals court this week reinstated his conviction, and although he legally has 10 more days on his sentence, an Army statement released Thursday said he would not have to return to the prison compound at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

"He won't go back to prison," said Pentagon spokesman Joseph Laitin.

Boyle's only comment at his sentencing Thursday at the hands of Delaware County Judge Francis Catania was: "All I can say is I'm innocent."

Catania ordered Boyle to begin serving the sentence in the Dallas, Pa., prison after he completes a present three-year federal sentence he is serving in Missouri for misuse of union funds.

A. Charles Peruto, Boyle's attorney, said "consecutive life sentences really mean very little when you are going to be 74." The attorney said he would appeal to the state supreme court.

Boyle was convicted on murder charges in the New Year's Eve, 1969, shooting deaths of the Yablonskis at their Clarksville, Pa., home.

Special prosecutor Richard Sprague said Boyle was "the one who set in motion the whole chain of events that a whole family was assassinated."

He called Boyle "the captain of the ship" and said he wanted to make sure Boyle's sentence was not less than any of the "puppets" received.

The slayings occurred three weeks after Boyle defeated Yablonski in an election for the UMW presidency and two weeks after Yablonski requested a challenge of the election results.

About 50 persons were in the courtroom, including Yablonski's attorney, Kenneth and "Chip," who recently resigned as UMW counsel.

Eight others charged in the slayings pleaded guilty or were convicted of first-degree murder. Two of first-degree death sentences.

Tony Boyle gets life sentences

MEDIA, Pa. (UPI) — At the age of 73 and still claiming his innocence, former United Mine Workers chief W.A. "Tony" Boyle is going to prison on three consecutive life sentences for the slayings of union rival Joseph Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

Boyle's only comment at his sentencing Thursday at the hands of Delaware County Judge Francis Catania was: "All I can say is I'm innocent."

Catania ordered Boyle to begin serving the sentence in the Dallas, Pa., prison after he completes a present three-year federal sentence he is serving in Missouri for misuse of union funds.

Big business tax authority to appear on June ballot

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A measure to make it easier for the legislature to increase the taxes of big business has won final legislative approval and will appear on the ballot next June.

On a 55-19 roll call Thursday, the Assembly approved a proposed constitutional amendment, supported by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., to reduce from a two-thirds majority to a simple majority the vote required to raise or lower the taxes paid by banks, corporations and insurance companies.

The proposal (SCA1) by Sen. John Dunlap, D-Napa, will go on the June primary election ballot for voter ratification.

Currently, it requires only a simple majority vote of each house of the legislature to increase consumer taxes such as on income, liquor, cigarettes and gasoline.

Republicans, except for Assemblyman Richard Hayden of San Jose, voted in a bloc against the Dunlap plan. Hayden broke GOP ranks and joined with all 54 Democrats to vote "aye," an action that gave the legislation one more vote than the two-thirds margin it needed for approval.

For Brown, final approval of the proposal meant 100 per cent success in obtaining passage of legislation he wanted to plug tax "loopholes" this year.

In his inaugural address, Brown asked for legislation to eliminate four tax privileges of the "privileged few." He listed them as the oil depletion

Christians, Moslems continue fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian and Moslem militiamen fought with bullets and rockets on the outskirts of Beirut today soon after the army brought a shaky peace to embattled northern Lebanon.

The on-again, off-again religious warfare erupted in suburban Beirut Thursday night hours after the army set up a buffer zone between Christian and Moslem militiamen in the north.

The clashes between Beirut's Christian suburb of Nassera and Moslem suburb of Ras Al-Nabeh died down early this morning, but gunmen from the two areas kept on roaming the streets.

Witnesses said a dispute between two motorists trying to buy rationed gasoline touched off the brief rocket and machine gun battle near the Lebanese capital.

In troubled northern Lebanon, hundreds of soldiers backed by armored cars took up positions Wednesday between the mainly Moslem city of Tripoli and the largely Christian town of Zghorta.

Nearly 400 persons have been killed or wounded in 12 days of fighting between militias from Tripoli, home of Moslem Premier Rashid Karami, and Zghorta, home of Christian President Suleiman Frangieh.

The militias managed to keep the two troops forces apart Thursday night, but reports from the scene told of sporadic clashes inside Tripoli between the city's Moslem majority and Christian minority.

Club celebrates bicentennial theme

With a colorful dash of red, white and blue table decorations, old kerosene lamplights and white candles in star holders, 95 members of Lompoc Community Woman's Club greeted the bicentennial year at the Royal Coach Restaurant Wednesday afternoon. Alice (Mrs. James) Jauncey decorated the tables. Jackie (Mrs. Robert) Molihan, vice president, presided in the absence of Frances (Mrs. Farley) Beckett, president.

The club's new members were welcomed at the door by Dottie (Mrs. C.K.) Chilson, who pinned each with a fall corsage of yellow chrysanthemums. Later introduced by Frances McAllister, membership chairman, were: Edith C. Ballard, Hazel Boyle, Waunita Brown, Mable Burns, Jane Cross, Tina Deglan, Wilma Eiles, Mary Hicks, Patty Lloyd, Toshi Inoye, Evelyn Martin, Myrtle Rios, Phyllis Smart and Agnes Sorenson. Introduced as guests of the day were: Cynthia Yuhas, Phyllis Smith, Marion Goedecke, Essie Merritt, Fredda Farmer, Esther Harris and Sandy Porter.

Garden section members will meet Sept. 16 in the multi-purpose room of Lompoc Library. Slides of Holland flower fields will be shown by Waunita Brown. Planning tours for the club during the coming year will be Pearl Price, section chairman, assisted by Ann Chesser, Betty McCarthy and Mrs. Brown. The first trip will be to the Felton Roaring Camp, a train ride in Santa Cruz on Nov. 6. All club members are welcome to the garden section meetings and their tours.

Maggie (Mrs. Claude) Hanshaw, program chairman, introduced Helen Brown of Hollywood, guest artist of the day, who gave a bicentennial concert of American music. Truly entertaining was her presentation of the development of our country as portrayed through its music. Dressed in period costume, Miss Brown sang selections of Stephen Foster, first American composer to achieve greatness. Prior to this, American music consisted of folk tunes from Europe or concert material from abroad.

Progressing through the years, the artist chose songs of historical times, closing with a duet "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair," in which her pianist joined voice, and finally, Irving Berlin's musical prayer "God Bless America."

Anniversary party honors visitors

Celebrating the 40th wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Westerbeck, visiting from Sidney, Ohio last month, Fred and Barbara Crawford hosted a barbecued steak dinner in their honor. Yellow icing rosebuds decorated their special anniversary cake. Party guests included Mr. and Mrs. Tom Stevens, Liz Bonney and daughter Rene. The visitors had accompanied their hosts to First Methodist Church services that morning.

During their stay, they enjoyed seeing the acres of flowers blooming in this "flower capital," and harvesting of seeds from earlier blooms. They were also taken to Santa Maria and Solvang, with its shops, bakeries, glass blowing exhibits, wine tasting cellars and windmills. Also visited were Pismo Beach and the Madonna Inn at San Luis Obispo.

They went to Vandenberg AFB where their son-in-law is employed, and saw where missiles have been launched. The men also had a day of deep sea fishing in the Pacific off Santa Barbara.

Dear Abby

Wife chokes on hubby's dinner joke

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a husband who thinks he's funny. I had a very nice dinner party at home the other night was especially proud of the way everything turned out.

Well, when the guests were leaving, my husband said, "Come back soon because the only time I get a decent meal around here is when we have company." Everybody laughed, but I wanted to crawl into a hole.

He said that once before, and it got a big laugh, so he pulled it again.

In the first place, Abby, it's not true. I pride myself on always feeding my family very well. I told him later I didn't think that crack was very funny, but he said, "I was only kidding."

Is there a clever retort I could use in case my husband, the comic, says that again?

TICKED OFF IN TULSA

DEAR TICKED: You could say, (only kidding of course) "The only time my ever lovin' Scrooge gives me money for fancy groceries is when we have company."

DEAR ABBY: Twelve years ago when my brother died, his death wish was that I watch over his wife and children, which I have.

Millie (his wife) never remarried due to some bad experiences with men.

She is ill now, and the doctors have given her about six months to live.

Yesterday, I stopped by to see Millie and the kids, and I mentioned a business trip I was going on.

Millie said, "Take me with you. I'm starved for a little love."

Abby, I love my wife and have never cheated on her, but I hate to turn Millie down.

What do I say to this beautiful, sensitive, love-starved woman who has now turned to me for help in the last days of her life?

TENDER CONSCIENCE

DEAR TENDER: Tell her the truth — that you'd like to take her, but you've never cheated on your wife, and your conscience won't permit it now.

DEAR ABBY: When are men going to smell like real he-men again?

I'm a 20-year-old single girl who's dating no one special, but all the men I date smell like happy hookers. Real nauseating.

Whatever happened to that natural masculine scent men used to have? Makes me wonder if maybe they aren't using a lot of sweet-smelling stuff to cover up the unpleasant odor that comes from not showering.

LIKES REAL MEN

DEAR LIKES: If you like the man, but don't like the way he smells, spend a couple of bucks for a scent you like better and ask him to use it — especially for you.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Conqs start from scratch; boast big-play offense

By SCOTT OSTLER

Proud of their winning tradition, the Cabrillo Conqs would prefer to forget about last year and get on to the business at hand.

The '74 season consisted of a couple bad breaks, bone-wise; an attack of what must have seemed to Conq fans like the bubonic plague (it was merely a devastating flu); and only four football victories.

It was a season only Marcus Welby could enjoy.

Whether or not the Conqs would have fared better without the medical problems is anybody's guess. All Ed Knowles knows is that the Conqs did not win more, and it made for a rough first year as head coach, and he would like to come up with a winner this time.

Knowles is not spending time sulking over the fact that the returning let-termen could easily have a group picture taken in a dime-store photo booth (28 players graduated). He and his staff have gone to work, simplifying the offense and changing the defense, trying to fit the right people into both.

They've pretty much starting from scratch. Though all seven returning let-termen were starters at least part-time last year, only one of them will be returning to a spot where he started regularly last year.

Luckily, that one player is the quarterback, Ray Dahlmann (Sr., 190). Ray started the final six games last year.

"I think he's going to be a great one," says Knowles, conservatively. "He ended up the season just great; had super games against Righetti and Lompoc. At the end of the league season I felt like he was one of the top quarterbacks in the league."

Ray's presence is one reason the Conqs are altering their offense to a true triple-option.

"We've always been an option team," explains Knowles, "but it was always pre-determined whether we were going to give to the dive man or whether it would be an option on the corner."

A lot of adjectives could be applied to last year's offensive attack. None of the adjectives are "explosive," "dangerous," or even "fairly exciting."

But all those words might well apply this season.

"As a complete backfield, it's probably the best we've ever had at Cabrillo," say Knowles, who has seen them all.

Halfback Andre McGant's (Sr., 180) broken arm kept him out of all but the final three games last year. He still managed to run for 240 yards, score six touchdowns, and make opposing coaches wish he were a senior.

"He should be just super," glows Knowles. "Besides super speed, Andre has the kind of knack to cut back against the grain. Things like that you can't teach backs; it's got to be instinct. I think Andre and Ray are probably major college prospects."

The talent does not drop off sharply there. Ron Carney (Jr., 175), the other halfback, has unlimited potential.

Note that all three backs have good size to go with fine speed. That's typical of the whole team. There is only one 200-pounder, but lots of quick 190-pounders, plenty big for high school ball.

A notable exception is the split end, Wayne "Freight Train" Brown (5-11, 155), who is built like a hat rack but is fast, elusive and thrives on danger. During baseball season he made the successful steal of home a routine play.

While he should be one of Dahlmann's primary pass targets, Brown's true value may be as a kick returner. Last year he scared more than one team into squibbing the ball on kickoffs to avoid him.

Rounding out the receiving corps will be flanker Larry Riggle (Sr., 157) and tight end Jim Dahlmann (Jr., 186), the quarterback's brother. Jim was very impressive in the summer passing league at Hancock.

"We say this every year," says Knowles this year, "but I feel like we're going to throw the ball more. We had great success in the passing league."

Before conceding a touchdown to the Conqs on every down, let's consider the offensive line. It is the line — offense and defense — which holds the key to Cabrillo's success, Knowles feels.

Simply stated, "If our linemen come through, and I honestly feel that they will, we're going to be in there."

Penciled into the offensive line right now are tackles Ron Harris (Jr., 196) and Kevin Breshears (Sr., 220), and center Mark Bingle (Jr., 170). The guard spots are still open to several candidates. Curt Rodgers (Sr., 190) looked super at guard in last Saturday's scrimmage until he broke a leg.

None of the 11 offensive starters will work on defense, a big change from last year when as many as eight players went both ways.

The Conqs have also scrapped their split-six defense in favor of an Oake defense with a four-deep secondary, hoping to improve on option-stopping and pass covering.

Linebacker is a key position, and Knowles seems excited about the pair he's got there now. Mark Bowser (Jr., 194) and Mark Hall (Sr., 175) are both fine wrestlers, having both earned trips out of the country to compete. They will be expected to pin their share of ballcarriers.

"The secondary looks great," reports Knowles. A transfer named Joe Culley (Jr., 165), who nobody knew a week ago, has earned a starting spot at strong safety. Tom Purvis (Jr., 159) is at the weak safety and the corners will be manned by Ken Clayton (Jr., 140) and Greg Holt (Jr., 156), giving the Conqs an all-junior secondary.

On the line right now are Mark Larson (Jr., 165) and Darryl Dalcerci (Jr., 160) at the ends, Jim Filarsky (Soph., 195) and Dave Eden (Jr., 193) at tackles, and Albert Reyes (Sr., 190) at noseman.

The schedule-makers have seen to it that the Conqs are challenged early. The season opener is against San Marcos, a team that many experts expect to dominate the Channel League. The league opener is against Santa Maria.

V-ball loop will be back

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The International Volleyball Association is coming back for a second season.

"All five of our teams will be back," producer David Wolper said Thursday. "In fact, I see money on the table for three or four new teams next season and we'd eventually like to go to 12."

Wolper, co-owner of the Los Angeles Stars and one of the IVA's founders, admitted the league lost money in 1975.

"If any new league thinks it's going to make money its first season, it's nuts," he said. "But we didn't lose as much as we thought we would and we didn't offer any inflated attendance or revenue figures."

THE BEST BACKFIELD, potentially, in Cabrillo's history, according to the team's head coach, will be taking the field in the season opener next weekend. That's Ray Dahlmann at quarterback, Andre McGant (left) and Ron Carney at the halfbacks. The Conqs hope those three, along with a talented group of receivers, will cause problems for several opponents.

College football

Who's the Rice qb? It's in the cards

Down in Houston, they'll be cutting cards to decide the starting quarterback for Rice's opener with the University of Houston Saturday, while in the midwest, the Badgers of Wisconsin are gearing up for hopefully their first cut of the Big Ten Conference spoils since 1962.

Tommy Kramer and Claude Reed battled evenly throughout spring and fall practice for the starting quarterback job at Rice with neither achieving a clear edge. And when Rice coach Al Conover put the situation to a vote of the Rice players, it still came out a tie.

"It was one of them that suggested that they cut the cards for the starting assignment," said Conover, who has been known to bash blackboards, throw chairs and set off fireworks to excite Rice his ball clubs in years past.

The official card cut will take place just prior to the 7:30 p.m. kickoff in the Astrodome, but regardless of who wins it — Kramer or Reed — the oddsmakers are not all that impressed with Conover's latest stunt. They tab Houston a 10-point favorite in the annual intra-city rivalry.

Not so, the situation at Madison, Wis. where Michigan is only a one-point favorite over Wisconsin. After 13 years of also-ran status, Badger patrons are enthusiastic this year and that enthusiasm could take on a touch of reality with a victory over the co-Big Ten favorite Wolverines.

"This is the toughest opener we've faced in my seven years at Michigan," said Wolverine coach Bo Schembechler. "Wisconsin might well have the best offensive team in the conference and by the end of last season their defense wasn't too bad either. By now it's probably improved."

Indeed, the Badgers are loaded on offense. In Billy Marek, they boast perhaps the most explosive running back in the country. A compactly-built 5-8, 188-pounder, Marek gained 1,215 yards as a junior last season despite missing three games. In the final four 1974 Badger games, he tallied 15 touchdowns. Unfortunately, the presence of Archie Griffin in the same conference has overshadowed Marek.

Elsewhere: top-rated Oklahoma is a heavily-favored against Oregon; Ohio State is a 6½-point favorite to avenge last year's upset loss to Michigan State; Nebraska is 14 over LSU in what shapes up as another chance for the Big Eight to dent the Southeastern Conference's pride; Penn State is 7 over Stanford, Tennessee 4 over Maryland, UCLA 6 over Iowa State and Auburn off-the-board at home against Memphis State.

Tonight, Southern California is a 19½-point favorite over Duke, while in the Monday night tv game, Notre Dame is a touchdown choice in its rivalry renewal with Boston College.

Elder leads World Open

PINEHURST, N. C. (UPI) — Lee Elder, ballyhooed earlier this year as the first black to play in the Masters, says now that his life is returning to normal he has more time to work on his golf game.

His efforts paid off Thursday as he shot a 6-under-par 65 over the treacherous Pinehurst Country Club No. 2 course to take a two-stroke lead into today's second round of the World Open golf tournament.

He turned over his business activities to his wife recently and decided to make a concerted effort to return to the form which earned him a victory in the 1974 Monsanto Open.

"I have my confidence now and I'm happy with the way I am playing," said the 41-year-old tour veteran. "You can't tell after just the first round. The pressure begins to mount in the third round."

Canadian Open champion Tom Weiskopf led a group of four golfers tied for second place at 4-under-par 67 after the first round of the $200,000 tournament. Others were veteran Rod Funseth and youngsters Pat Fitzsimons and Danny Edwards.

"It's a fun course to play," said Weiskopf, who combined five birdies with a bogey. "It's a classic. It requires everything in the game. It has everything and it keeps your interest."

Funseth, like others who played in the afternoon, had to contend with a driving rain that stopped play for almost a half hour. But he holed out a 35-foot shot from a wet sand trap at the 16th hole for an eagle three.

Jim Dent, who was 6-under before he lost three strokes on the closing holes, led a group of four players at 68 Thursday.

Keeping track

Gray a shoo-in

Johnny Gray is apparently a shoo-in for a spot on the final 43-man roster of the Green Bay Packers. The only question remaining is whether Gray will earn a starting spot in the Pack's defensive backfield.

Gray, graduate of Lompoc High, Hancock College and Cal St. Fullerton, signed with Green Bay this year as a free agent.

He got his first pro start at free safety last week against the Kansas City Chiefs. According to Green Bay sources, the Chiefs didn't really test the rookie defender. Therefore, he may get another starting shot tomorrow when the Packers host the 49ers.

The Packers coaches noted that Gray seems to have a good nose for the ball, and is extremely alert. All NFL teams must trim to 43 players Monday.

Roy Howell is currently hitting .251 (85-for-338) for the Texas Rangers. His latest hit was a triple against Minnesota Wednesday, his second of the season. Roy also has 47 RBIs and 40 runs scored and 17 errors.

According to an article in the new "Sporting News," Howell is likely to be back at third base next season, although it was earlier planned to eventually move Toby Harrah to third.

One of the reasons for the change of plans is "the emergence of 21-year-old southpaw-swinging Howell, a power-hitting third baseman, whose improvement, both afield and at bat in the last 40 games, has been noteworthy. Now the feeling is he has earned a chance to continue at the position instead of being shifted to the outfield as earlier planned," said "The Sporting News."

Rollie Garife looked sharp in the annual intersquad scrimmage at Chico State last weekend. The former Lompoc High quarterback who missed the '73 and '74 college seasons at Chico, appears to have earned the starting quarterback spot.

Rollie completed seven of 11 passes for 82 yards in the scrimmage, and did a good job running the option.

ED KNOWLES took over the head football post at Cabrillo last year just in time to experience a run of bad luck and a losing season. This year things are looking up.

Are you ready?

By Scott Ostler

The fridge is stacked with beer, the easy chair has been pulled from over in the corner to that spot right in front of the tv, and you've installed and tested that bolt lock that will keep the kids securely in their room. You're ready for the football season.

Or are you? Football is a complicated game. The players take weeks to get ready, and you should not expect to leap into the season without preparation. It's been months since you've seen a real football game (practice games don't count) and let's face it — you're rusty.

No need to hustle off to the library for one of those phonebook-sized volumes on football strategy, books that even coaches don't understand. Take the simple test which follows, review the glossary of terms, and you'll be ready.

1. The oldest structure in football is: A) the Coliseum in L.A.; B) Soldier Field in Chicago; C) George Blanda in Oakland.

2. Joe Namath fears being sacked because he knows it can cause: A) bone chips in his knees; B) calcium deposits in his arm; C) runs in his panyhose.

3. The most stubborn line in the NFL is: A) Pittsburgh's Steel Curtain B) the Rams' Fearsome Foursome; C) the Players Association picket.

4. A pro football interior lineman is easily identified as the one without his own: A) Rolls Royce; B) talk show; C) teeth.

5. The classiest thing a runner can do with the football after running for a touchdown is: A) slam it to the turf; B) flip it coolly over his shoulder; C) grind it into the face of his nearest opponent.

6. Howard Cosell is: A) a figment of Alex Karras' imagination; B) a sweet guy, compared to Jimmy Connors; C) everywhere.

7. The way to a player's heart is through his: A) stomach; B) wallet; C) agent.

8. The University of Alabama traveling squad is slightly larger than: A) The Mormon Tabernacle Choir; B) the University of Alabama student body; C) the U. of Missouri traveling squad.

9. The most bruising battles of the upcoming season will take place in: A) Green Bay; B) Miami; C) court.

10. The head of the NFL Players Association is: A) Ed "Train" Grady; B) Marvin Miller; C) Marvin Gardens.

11. You must always remember: A) to play 'em one at a time; B) to give 110 per cent; C) that there's no tomorrow.

Glossary:

Sack: What you put your bottle of wine in.

Pocket: What you don't put your wallet in.

Pitchout: What you'd like the usher to do to the fat guy who's blowing smoke in your face and sloshing beer on your Hush Puppies.

Sprint out: Dash for the restrooms at halftime.

Dempsey, defense win 6-0 in 'Super Bowl preview'

Thursday night's pre-season game between the Los Angeles Rams and the Oakland Raiders was being heralded as a Super Bowl preview and it was played just like a Super Bowl.

Defense dominated the game, there wasn't a touchdown scored and the Rams won 6-0 on a pair of Tom Dempsey field goals in the second period.

Los Angeles, the pre-season favorite in the National Conference, entered the game with a 4-1 exhibition record. Oakland, picked to dethrone Pittsburgh in the AFC, was the only remaining unbeaten club in the league at 5-0.

The Rams' defense throttled the high-powered Raider offense, one of the most powerful in the league, and Dempsey, acquired from Philadelphia in the off-season, provided what little offense there was in the game with field goals of 26 and 32 yards.

The shutout was the first against Oakland since 1967.

Dempsey kicked his 26-yarder at 3:40 of the second quarter and his 32-yarder at 8:13. Los Angeles' defense, led by end Jack Youngblood, registered its second shutout in five days.

The Rams intercepted three Ken Stabler passes in the first half and one by Larry Lawrence in the second. Youngblood led a defensive charge that dropped Raider quarterbacks four times with three sacks.

For the Raiders, it was their first shutout since Kansas City routed them 48-0 in Portland Ore., Aug. 19, 1967 in pre-season. Their last regular season shutout was in 1966.

A crowd of 68,630 in Los Angeles watched the Rams dominate the Raiders. The Rams moved to the Oakland two early in the last quarter but failed to score and were on the Raider eight when the game ended.

In tonight's action, Kansas City is at Buffalo and Washington at Baltimore. On Saturday, Philadelphia is at Atlanta, Detroit at Cleveland, San Francisco at Green Bay, Minnesota at San Diego, Pittsburgh at Dallas, the New York Giants at Miami, New Orleans at Cincinnati and Houston at Chicago. Sunday, St. Louis is at Denver and the New York Jets play New England at New Haven, Conn.

Washington, beaten 35-31 by the New York Jets Sunday night, again will be without the services of wide receivers Roy Jefferson and Charley Taylor. Running back Larry Brown's status won't be determined until just before kickoff. All three have knee injuries.

Phils' fold not fault of Larry C.

Thanks to a 21-year-old right-hander, Larry Christenson, the Philadelphia Phillies are not yet the "was kids" of 1975.

Once the young '75 Phillies began to challenge the Pittsburgh Pirates for National League East pennant, comparisons of the last Philadelphia pennant club—the 1950 "whiz kids" of Robin Roberts, Richie Ashburn, Granny Hamner et al—readily came to mind.

And although the Pirates have now rebuilt a formidable lead, Christenson, has been one of the few rays of hope on an otherwise disappointing pitching staff.

Thursday night, Christenson threw a rain-abbreviated 6½-inning 5-0 shutout over the Montreal Expos that, combined with the Pirates' loss, moved the Phillies to within five games of first place in the NL East. The three-hitter upped Christenson's record to 10-5 in his first full major league season.

"He's got the same type of delivery as Roberts did," said Phillies Manager Danny Ozark. "Hard and fast. He's certainly been a big help to us."

The Phillies scored three runs in the first inning off loser Steve Rogers and Mike Schmidt added his 34th homer in the fourth, a solo shot.

"We have five games left with the Pirates," said Larry Bowa, who scored three of the Phillies' runs. "We just have to keep winning against everyone though."

THINK ABOUT IT!
BY BOB LILLEY
If you owned a small business and your next door neighbor spent over half his income at your place, you'd be pretty happy to have him around—now wouldn't you? Well, that's the case for the Lompoc Valley and V.A.F.B.—over half the income generated by Vandenberg personnel is spent right here in this valley. For this reason and many others—the base is a mighty good neighbor!

Palmer, Hunter match wins

Race is on for Cy

The best race in the American League right now is between two super pitchers for the Cy Young pitcher of the year Award.

Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles and Jim Hunter of the New York Yankees are old rivals for the award. Palmer won it in 1973 when he had a 22-9 record and Hunter won it as a member of the Oakland A's last season when he was 25-12.

The Boston Red Sox, who have no serious contender for the award, maintained their five-game lead in the AL's Eastern Division with a 3-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers Thursday while both Palmer and Hunter added to their personal laurels.

Palmer, a 20-game winner for the fifth time in the last six seasons, raised his record to 21-10 lowered his earned run average to 2.17 with a nine-hitter as the Orioles defeated Cleveland 10-2.

Lee May hit his 20th homer and Mark Belanger, Bobby Grich and Ken Singleton had two hits each as the Orioles made it 40 wins in 61 games since the All-Star break. Palmer, who has pitched 22 complete games, yielded homers to Oscar Gamble in the seventh and to Rico Carty in the ninth.

Hunter, only the third pitcher in AL history to win 20 or more games in five or more consecutive seasons, raised his mark to 21-13 and lowered his ERA to 2.58 as the Yankees downed the Milwaukee Brewers 10-2. It was the 28th complete game of the year for Hunter.

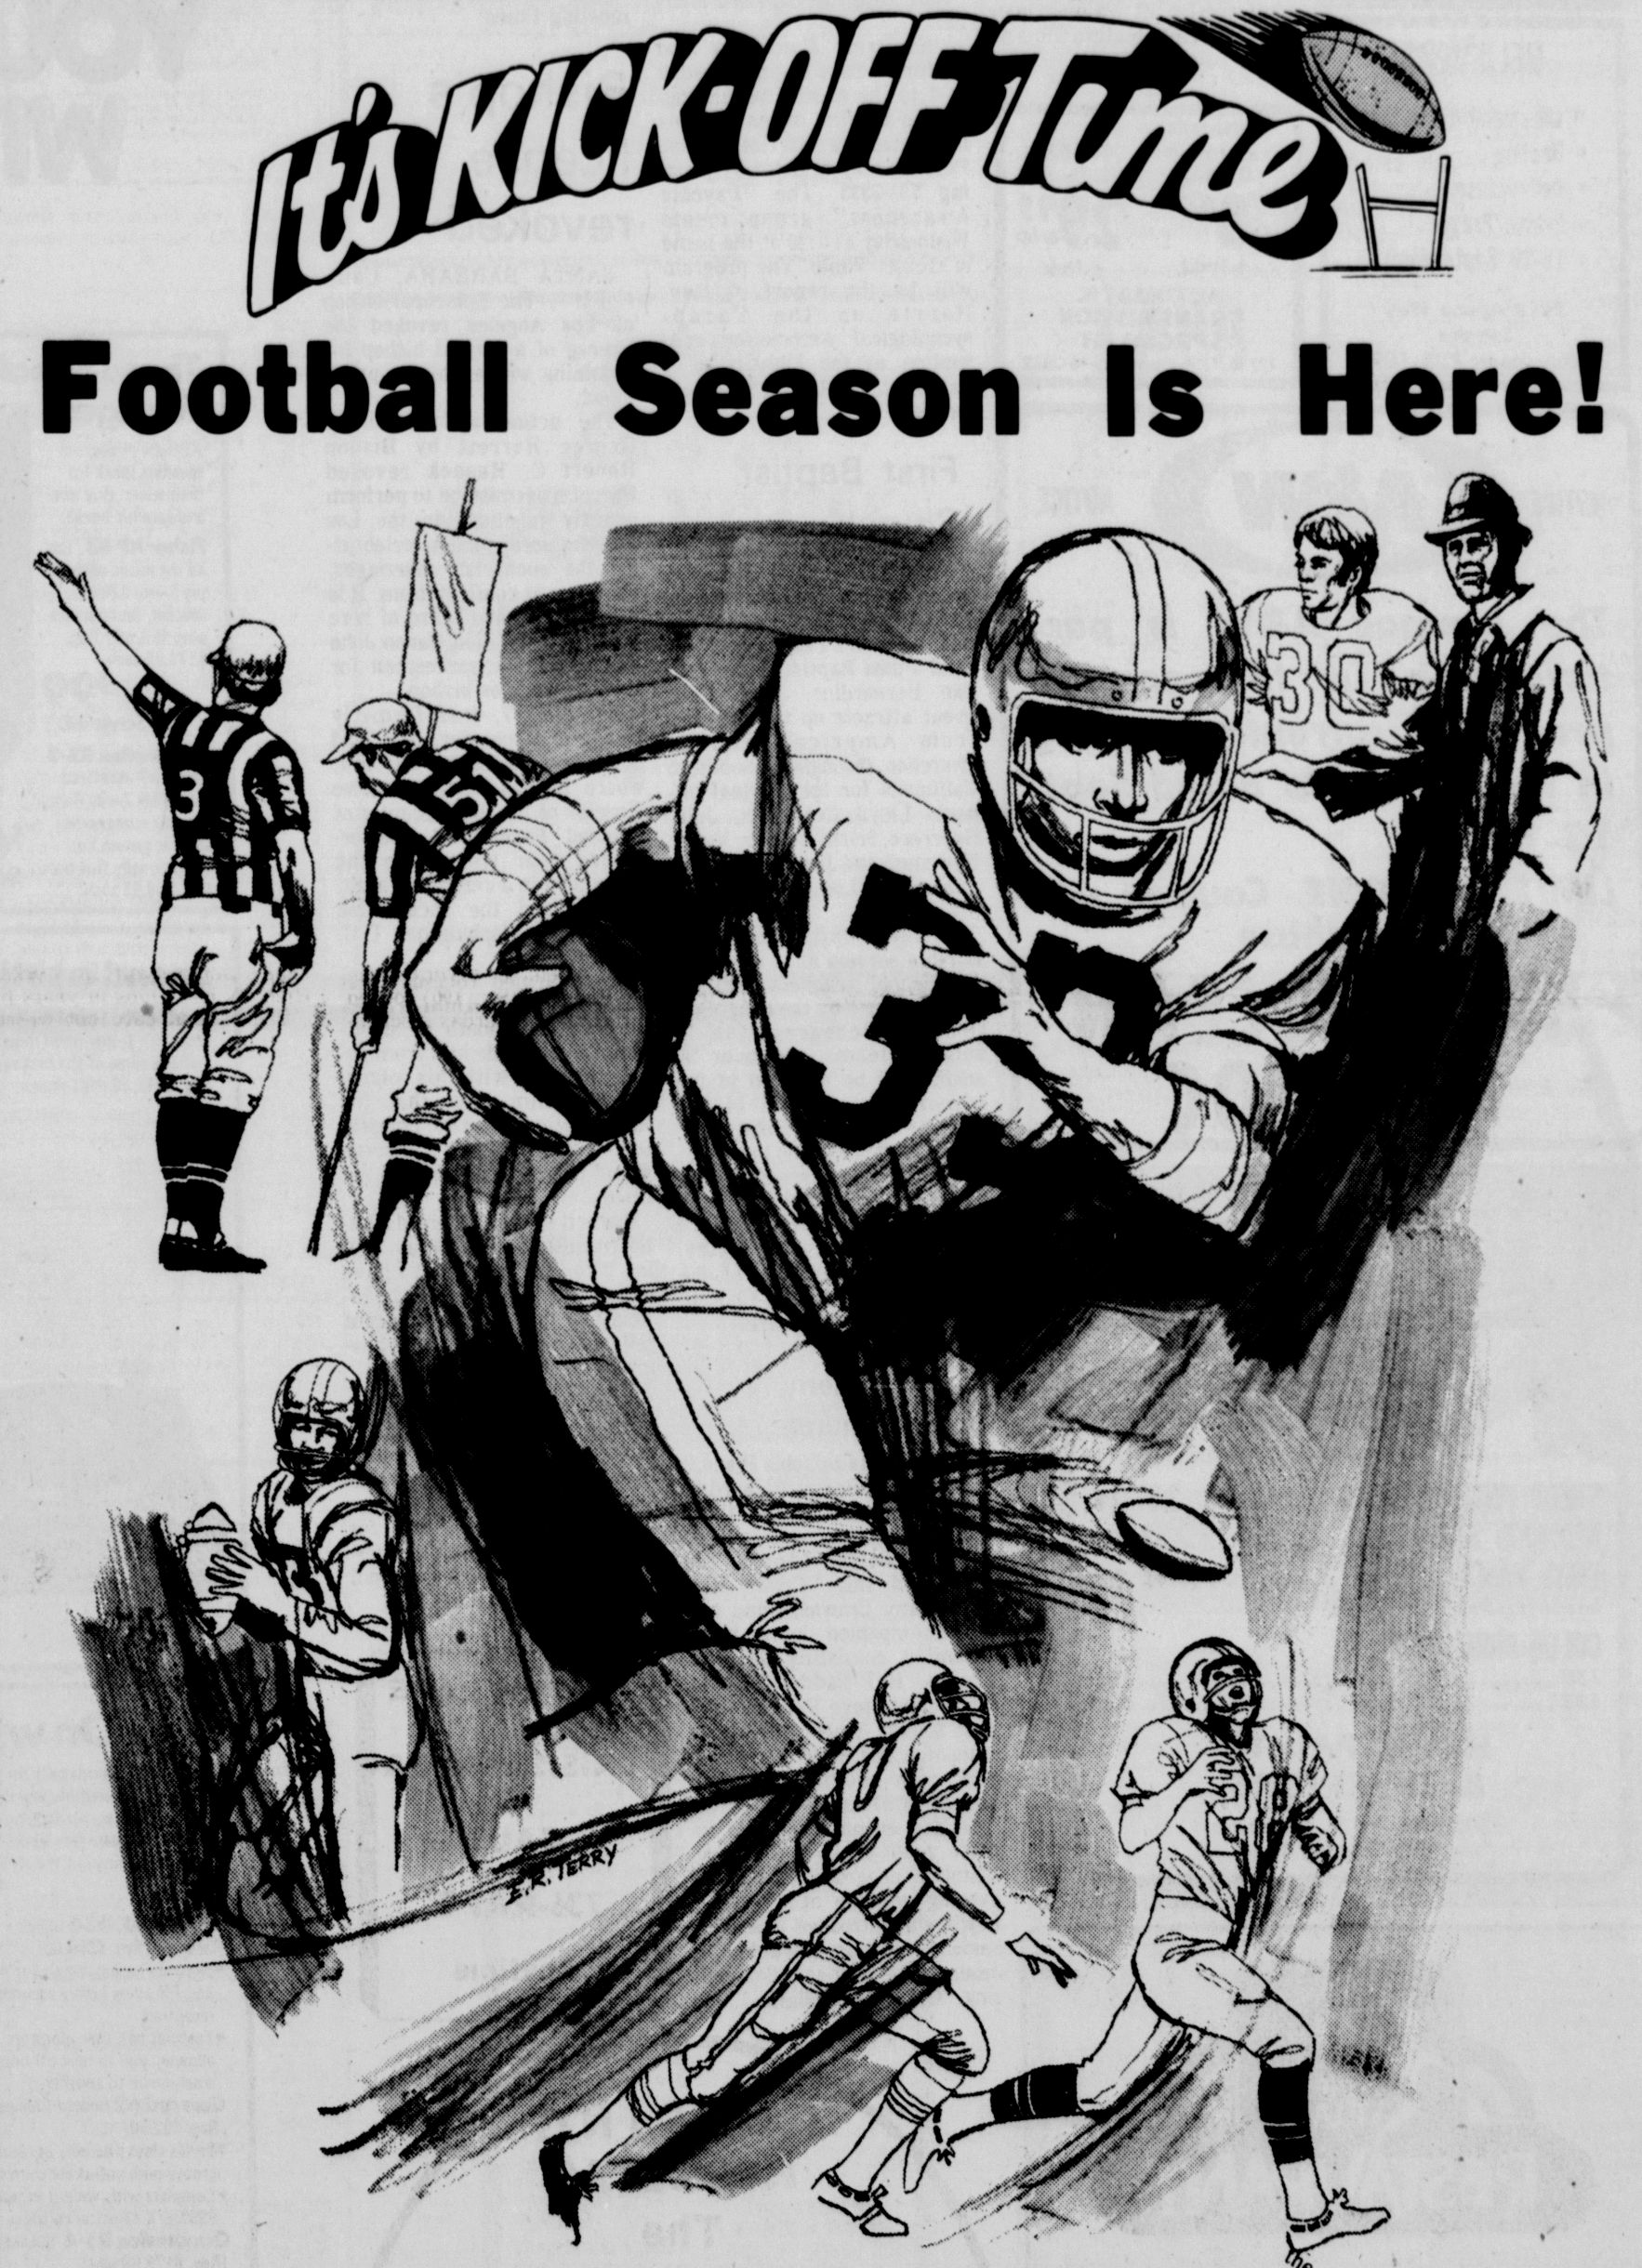

Graig Nettles hit a pair of two-run homers to lead the Yankees' 17-hit attack which routed Jim Colborn in four innings and dealt him his 11th loss against 10 victories. Nettles, Roy White and Chris Chambliss had three hits each for the Yankees.

Luis Tiant, winning his first game since Aug. 15, pitched a no-hitter for 7 2-3 innings and finished with a three-hitter for the Red Sox. Aurelio Rodriguez singled with two out in the eighth inning for the first hit off Tiant, now 16-13, and Bob Baldwin homered in the ninth to spoil the shutout.

The Red Sox scored two runs in the second inning on a triple by Jim Rice, a run-scoring infield out by Carlton Fisk, singles by Rico Petrocelli and Dwight Evans and run-scoring grounder by Rick Burleson.

United Church of Christ

The sermon "God's Love Is With All People" or "Repentance, Forgiveness, Atonement" will be delivered at the 10 a.m. service Sunday at Valley of the Flowers United Church of Christ, 3346 Constellation Road. The children's story, "The Tear of Repentance," is drawn from the Jewish Yom Kippur tradition, told by the congregational pastor, Richard E. Harris. The senior choir begins the fall season with Robert Wetzler's "Hail Thee, Spirit, Lord Eternal."

"Exploring Patchwork and Quilting" class begins Tuesday at 7 in the education building. This is the first of ten sessions instructed by Harriet Hayes. Persons may register by phoning 733-3333. The "Psychic Awareness" group meets Wednesday at 7:30 at the home of Ginger White. The program will be the report of Rev. Harris on the Parapsychological Association convention at the University of California, Santa Barbara, last month.

First Baptist Church

This Friday and Saturday seven laymen from First Baptist Church will attend the annual laymen's retreat at Thousand Pines Baptist Camp near San Bernardino. The annual event attracts up to 1,000 men from American Baptist Churches throughout Southern California for its spiritual impact. Lloyd Crossman, Julio Guerrero, Norm Bowler, Vance Newcomb and Jim Redford will attend from Lompoc First Baptist.

In the Sunday morning worship service at 11 new Sunday School teachers will be commissioned by the congregation. The congregation is building teams and over 30 adults will be involved in the educational program of the church. The Rev. John Eby, pastor, will preach on the topic: "Do You Dare Surrender Your Tongue to the Lord?"

At the evening service beginning at 7:15 the Rev. Carlos Gullora, pastor of the First Mexican Baptist Church, will be the guest speaker.

The choir will sing "Crown Him With Many Crowns," and will be accompanied by a brass ensemble consisting of Mike Lomas, Hal Caddell, Bryan Wood, and Steve Parsons. The best Sunday School attendance campaign and Bible study is at 9:30, with children's worship also at 10:50 a.m.

Bishop's license revoked

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — The Episcopal bishop of Los Angeles revoked the license of a retired bishop for ordaining women to the priesthood.

The action against Bishop George Barrett by Bishop Robert C. Ruskak revoked Barrett's permission to perform priestly functions in the Los Angeles area, such as celebrating the eucharist, marriages, baptisms or confirmations. It is "the first I have heard of here for a bishop," said Canon John Farnsworth, a spokesman for the Los Angeles bishop.

Barrett, 67, was formerly bishop of Rochester, N.Y. and now lives in Santa Barbara, where he has been executive director of the local chapter of Planned Parenthood. He ordained four women to the priesthood in a ceremony at St. Stephen and the Incarnation Church in Washington, D.C. Sunday.

He confirmed Thursday that Ruskak had visited him in Santa Barbara last month in an attempt to dissuade him from going through with his plans, warning him then that his license to perform priestly functions in Ruskak's diocese would be revoked if he did not relent.

Barrett said he received a letter from Ruskak Saturday, saying "You will note that I have withdrawn your license to officiate in this diocese. I cannot tell you how much I regret having to do this."

Ruskak reportedly favors admitting women to the priesthood, but like many other Episcopal bishops believes that individual bishops cannot act on their own, but must wait for changes by the church's general convention, which does not meet until September, 1976.

Win at bridge
East delivers old 1-2 punch rounds of trumps, leads his queen of clubs and West is caught in an early end play.

In the actual play East did put up his king of spades, did shift to a diamond and was rewarded by scoring 100 well-earned points.

Why did he lead the diamond? He explained at length that it was the presence of the four clubs to the 10 in the dummy.

He pointed out that there were so many combinations where that 10 of clubs could develop into a trick that he just had to lead the diamond.

OPINIONS

The Record's aim is to present facts in its news columns and opinions in its editorial columns.

Animal control

One can always bet that when a government body starts fiddling around with animal control, emotions will be high and that is what we are once again witnessing in Lompoc.

The Lompoc Planning Commission is currently wrestling with a revision of the animal control ordinance. The revision is deemed necessary, they say, by the increasing number of complaints.

The present animal control ordinance does have some flaws, for sure. We know of no law that doesn't. However, we suspect that a number of the rising complaints are registered primarily because the present law isn't thoroughly enforced.

There can be no question that an animal control law is needed for the protection, certainly, of residential neighborhoods. It is only natural that we have some laws, for example, that would prohibit a proliferation of bee hives by a next-door neighbor or the keeping of horses in the rear yard of a residential lot.

We don't envy the task undertaken by the commission and therefore sympathize with the cautious attitude they are employing in attempting to make the revisions flexible yet fair.

H and Ocean by Harry Crompe

Be kind

School started in Lompoc last week, as we all know, and the students and teachers are no doubt properly acquainted by this time. However, we came across a very well written piece of advice for those kindergarten teachers who face their first students and even though it is a bit late, we're going to pass it on.

The piece was written by Mary Frances Heet and it's titled, "Be Kind to Him, World." We suspect it will strike a tender note with many a parent hereabouts.

"Please handle him with care. Inside that tall, lean body are such fragile, tender feelings.

"He's shy sometimes and talks loudly to cover it up. He's afraid sometimes and acts bossy so no one will discover his fear. He's used to a lot of praise. So please understand his disappointment when he finds out he's not as great as we've led him to believe.

"It's just that all he's ever known is love, gifts, laughter, hugs and even stern discipline has been given with love.

"Now, he'll meet all kinds of people in his new world who do not love him.

"They'll tell him a dandelion is not a great gift but just a weed. They'll tell him that anyone can hang by his knees from a swing set. They'll show him he's not one bit special in any way.

"But oh, world, they will be so wrong! For he's so special.

"He can make a dandelion turn into a rose. He can transform a playground trick into a circus act. Most of all, he can turn an ordinary house into a palace of happiness with his sparkling eyes and happy smile.

"He's special because he's ours; and yet, he really isn't. He's his own person, all dressed up in his new outfit waiting for the school bus.

"For today is his first day of school. "Be kind to him, world!"

Classified advertisements can be very interesting at times, particularly the personals.

This one was spotted recently in the Long Beach Press-Telegram:

"Sue, since you left me, my heart has felt a great loss. The house seems dark and silent. The warm glow that greeted me upon coming home is no longer there. Please stop my suffering and send the television back, George."

THOUGHTS WHILE SHAVING

Our columnist friend Bob Vincent in Santa Paula says that show me a man who walks with his head held high and I'll show you a man who hasn't become used to his bifocals. We imagine that we'll have some muscles come Monday as the Record's annual picnic is scheduled for Sunday and that volleyball game is usually a killer for people our age. We were privileged this week to take a tour of the Moore's Department Store remodeling job and all we can say is that it is downright fantastic. It is a great contribution to the downtown revitalization program. Jimmy Magnuson did a fine job of design, recycling where he could without losing any flavor. We are planning some expansion of our sports pages and society pages in the very near future. Watch for it.

Ray Cromley

Congress' image

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — "I attempted to make an amendment on the floor of the House (of Representatives) to make the salary of congressmen a minimum of $5,000 and a maximum of $50,000, and provided that every member should come in at the beginning of the session and sign an affidavit as to what he thought he was worth within that range, and that is what he would be paid."

Such was the cynical reaction of Congressman Wayne L. Hays (D-Ohio) to the debate on raising congressional salaries by providing every member and his staff with regular automatic cost of living increases from here on out — so that they never again will personally feel the effects of inflation, so worrisome in the lives of all the rest of us, their constituents. Hays, nevertheless, voted for the raise.

As has been reported, this perpetual cost of living increment, along with similar favors for federal judges, several thousand top government officials and 600 generals, was so unobtrusively tacked on to a minor Post Office bill and so carefully shepherded by Senate and House leaders that passage was quick and with little debate.

The entire action was carefully orchestrated to be introduced and passed before public opinion was aroused and thousands of nasty editorials written — a development which could have killed the raises aborning.

In the midst of the short debate, Representative Bauman, (R-Md.) observed in a session with his colleagues "...you know what is happening this circle of canary-eating grins..."

But the ayes had it. Sen. Hiram Fong (R-Hawaii) argued that the Congress had to do something "to help those members who are barely getting along with their $42,500 salary..."

Congressman Peter Peyser (R-N.Y.), on the House side, said that the economics of being a congressman "are murder." He indicated that coming to Congress had been an economic disaster for him, but that he was willing to make this sacrifice in the public good. However, he wanted the raise.

One representative emphasized that even the boost being voted would not catch congressmen up with the 40 some per cent cost of living increase since their last raise.

A number of congressmen, who will remain nameless, piously argued they did not want or need the increase but were going to vote for it. Since other officials were getting increases, they said, it would be unfair for Congressmen not to vote equal benefits for themselves. It would smack of discrimination.

It was also argued that if congressmen didn't vote raises for themselves, they might in due time have some staff members earning more than congressmen.

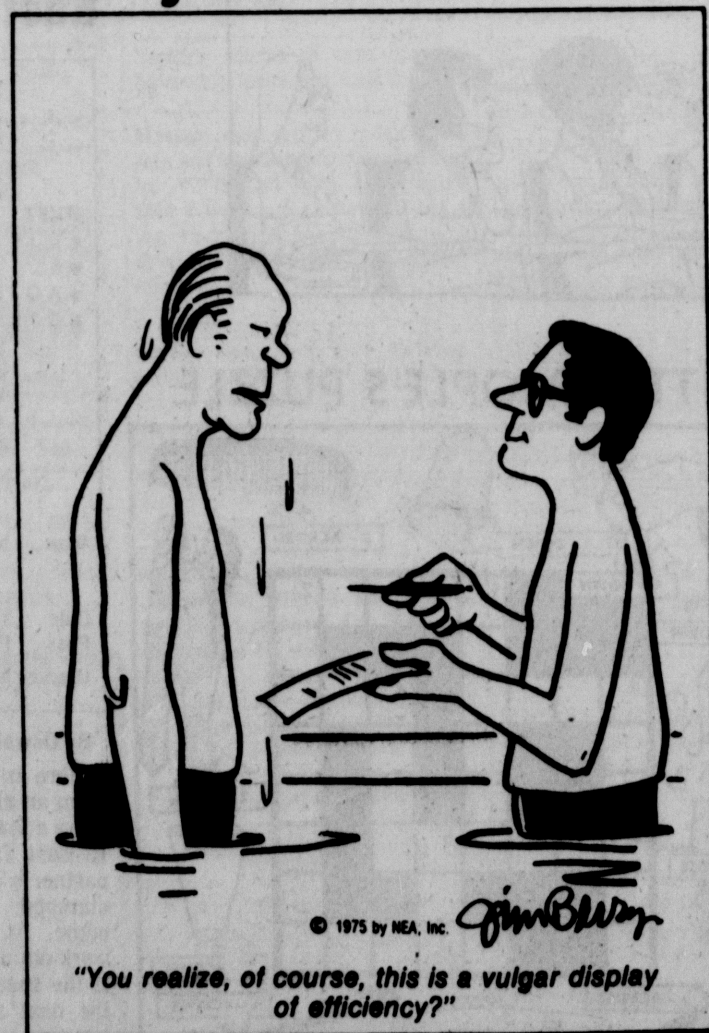

But the ultimate rationalization was put forward by Rep. Abner J. Mikva (D-Ill.), who, noting that only 15 per cent of those questioned in a recent poll approved of the way Congress has been acting, argued that their low salaries is the cause of the low esteem in which senators and representatives are held. The solution, and the key to greater respect, Mikva indicated, was to raise congressional pay.

With these compelling arguments before them, the Senate voted the raises by 58 to 29 and the House by a slippery 214 to 213. One man, Rep. Herbert Burke (R-Fla.) changed his vote to aye in midstream, saving the day for those who believed themselves overworked and underpaid.

The majority was in no mood to listen to those who argued caution. Rep. William Armstrong (R-Colo.) expressed the view of a minority when he asked "...are we going to insulate ourselves from the concerns of our constituents? We are so pampered and so coddled and so isolated from the day-to-day concerns ... (of) our people at home ... it becomes almost impossible for us to represent them."

I concur.

Our canal in Panama

Everyone is agreed that, in respect of the Panama Canal, we are headed for Confrontation. It's our fault, mostly, though the anticolonialist zeitgeist plays a role in it. It's our fault in the sense that nobody would be talking about the necessity of the United States abandoning the Panama Canal if the United States hadn't begun, as it did under Eisenhower, making concessions on the subject.

Nobody, outside the deejays in Radio Havana, talks about the United States giving up its naval base in Guantanamo, Cuba. But treat yourself to one President, or even one Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, on "Meet the Press" or the "Today" show, beating his breast about our atavistic presence in Cuba, and the subject comes up for immediate negotiation. Then the entire Third World closes in on you, and you make silly defensive speeches in the United Nations, and pretty soon we have a ceremony, and John-John pulls down the American flag, and our last destroyer steams out into the sunset.

But what then steams in, in all probability and given the dynamic flux of the world situation, is the Soviet Navy. And of course it is the Soviet Navy we are properly concerned about in Panama. Running Panama at the moment is a talkative left-wing despot who staged a coup in 1968 and has suspended democratic elections. He studied his economics from Allende, and openly praises Castro. He has talked publicly about the need for a guerrilla war of liberation if the United States does not give in to his demands. Behind him is all the United Nations, whose Security Council junketed down to Panama to thunder and shake over the vestigial act of western colonialism, ending its filibuster only when interrupted by a U.S. veto.

Meanwhile Henry Kissinger has gone down there to mollify Torrijos, and Ambassador Bunker, the kindest and most intelligent of men whose footsteps, unfortunately, are dogged by historical scavengers, is down there trying to work something out. While the Executive was planning an orderly retreat from Panama, suddenly a Senate minority and a House majority acted in separate resolutions indicating quite clearly that they had no intention of backing away from Panama. The canal, for those who've forgotten it, is United States territory. As much so as Key West or Atlantic City. And the Constitution requires an acquiescence by both Houses in the abandonment of U.S. territory.

But don't you see, we won't abandon it, they reassure us. We'll merely modify the existing situation, which is unacceptable to Panamanian pride, and still maintain effective military control over the area.

No doubt the plans for retreat are more sophisticatedly drawn up than as intimated here. But we are in fact losing sight of the scaffolding of the American argument:

- 1) We don't "lease" the canal — we compensate Panama for the use of the railroad, not the canal, which is ours.
- 2) We don't make a profit from the canal, we plough all revenue back in toward its maintenance.
- 3) If we are going to straighten out historical pride, then we should begin not by enhancing Panama, but by eliminating it, and returning it to Colombia whence it was wrested by international hanky-panky at the turn of the century.

4) If France and England were't able to maintain, according to the schedule agreed upon, their hold on Suez, how could we expect, having relinquished effective operational control, to contain the likes of Torrijos?

5) The big and important countries of Latin America, Venezuela excepted, aren't all that hot to give little Torrijos the keys to a canal on which they depend so heavily. There has been only formalistic pressure from Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay, and Ecuador.

6) It may just not be too soon for somebody in the United States government responsibly placed to open up the question whether our flight from colonialism is historically or morally justified. In a world that seeks stability so that it can focus on the problem of producing food for hungry people, the passion to decolonialize becomes an abstract imperative alongside the humanitarian alternative of staying in there, particularly if you have strategic responsibilities to defend. Resolved, The United States should hang on to its canal in Panama.

Public should probe

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Baruch Korff, the sedulous Connecticut rabbi who led the "people's defense" of Richard Nixon's presidency, is still irked at the bum's rush given his champion in the mass media. Consequently he has formed what he calls the U.S. Citizens' Congress, whose principal cause has been the issuance of discouraging remarks about America's press.

Because few have taken note of the rabbi's efforts, least of all the media, Korff is apparently ready to escalate the campaign. He has written a "voluntary code of ethics" for journalists which he intends to distribute for public consideration.

Congress especially will be hustled on the matter. Korff is hoping to solicit powerful support, possibly even special committee hearings, for what he believes to be a most urgent but mostly ignored national problem.

Primarily because his prejudices conflict with his objectivity concerning the subject, the prognosis for Korff's success is not good. But this does not diminish the merits, nor the necessity of his project. The question of press ethics is at least as material to his project. This question of press ethics is at least as material to democracy as that of, say, political ethics; but while the latter is ever a subject for public investigation, the former continues to remain outside the idea of accountability.

The media is controversial, it is suspicious, but there is this notion it is also inviolate. It is time to alter the myth. The Constitution does not guarantee the media the right to isolate itself from public scrutiny and advice.

No doubt an energetic probe would be of some humiliation for journalism, for few in the business are entirely clean of sin. In the name of the people's right to know, many of us have made practices of activities we condemn when done in any other pursuit.

The two Washington Post reporters who broke open the Watergate case, noble as their effort was, did so by compromising some public law. They used a friend in the phone company, for one thing, to acquire records which violated some citizens' rights to privacy. This reporting aid, by the way, is not uncommon; some Washington reporters have sources in the IRS, as example, who will on request, in violation of U.S. rules, pass on private data.

But if the legal parameters of some reporting tactics are in sore need of public inspection, the moral boundaries, almost unlimited sometimes, should be of even greater popular concern. Sports writers often receive money and other favors from the management of teams they cover. Political writers who become overly friendly with office holders frequently protect them from adverse publicity. Beat reporters tend to write favorably of those they cover for fear of losing access and while some news people tread lightly on news sources, others, usually those with considerable influence, may force news developments by use of such tools as threats and blackmail.

An example of the latter point is in order here. And the ongoing CIA story is as good as any. At least some of the reports of agency abuse that have appeared over the past months have been gathered by an ageless reporting technique that employs both deceit and muscle: A newsmen approaches an unwilling source, falsely says he has the evidence he wants but needs an admission by the source; then he says his paper (or television network) will protect the source if he cooperates, and smear his reputation if he does not.

Illegal? No. Immoral? Maybe. In any event it seems clear the public should be aware of how the news is sometimes collected.

Already, of course, the public is skeptical, if largely ignorant, of news collection ethics. At a Washington convention of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce early this year, when delegates were asked to list American traditions most important to them, the tradition of press freedom was posted dead last. Not a little of this cynicism is a result of the media's historic reluctance to admit its errors or lift its shades.

Perhaps Rabbi Korff's "code of ethics" is not the answer to building press credibility, such codes even now collect dust in newsrooms everywhere. But it seems unlikely the public will forever benignly accept the media insistence that the right to know does not include the right to know about the media.

THOUGHTS ON PROFESSIONAL ETHICS

Any "government, of, by and for"
Has adequate cause to deplore
A crude confrontation
Or rude demonstration
Imported from some foreign shore.
